

Hello Lauren,

When I read your letter, you said that you only had one snow storm. That blew my mind away! We had one day with about 1 foot of snow. That canceled school for only one day. I'm glad that you had a good break though. One thing that I hated about winter break was all the snow. I hate winter with a passion, just because it's cold and you can't go outside without like 5 layers. Even with 5 layers it's still cold.

I really liked that you noticed the part about racism and MLK. I have a strong passion about anti-racism. I grew up in a multi culture community, so I noticed it. I have some questions just to get to know you better. Here's one if you had 3 wishes then what would you do with them? Another one is if you could play any sports would you and if you would what sport? What is your favorite animal every extinct or not (including dinosaurs)? If you could be any animals what animal would you be?

Something in science that I'm excited about is the new animals that are in our room. There are 4 small lizards one slug and guppies. They're cool and fun to observe every day. I love animals so when I come to class in the morning it's so cool to see them. One time one of the lizards was hanging on the upside down on the top of the cage. It was very funny.

One thing that I'm excited for is spring break. One reason is because during spring break I can play my favorite game Fortnite. If you haven't heard of it then in a nutshell it is the most downloaded console game right now. One of the reasons it's so popular is because it is free, and you can do so much. I'm also excited because I don't have to go to school because I'm not really liking school that much right now.

I'll expand on the school thing. One reason that I really don't like school right now is because a couple weeks ago we had a silent lunch. So, we couldn't talk at all and one time I got moved because I did a handshake with my best friend. Another thing that got me ticked off was we didn't even have recess one time. Also, in 6th hour (which is right after lunch and recess) our principal walked in the room and said "Why are you guys so hyper?" You have no idea how bad I wanted to say "maybe because we didn't have recess."

I also wanted to know more about being a Vet and what it takes. So, I did so research on being a Vet. What I found was very cool. I found out that getting into a veterinarian school is very, very hard. On one of the websites that I was on said that "There were nearly 6,800 applicants competing for approximately 2,700 openings in 2013." That is about 1/3 of people that apply get in that's crazy.
